

About the Contributors

ROLANDO AVENDANO is a Research Associate at the OECD Development Centre in Paris. He is currently working on subjects related to the macroeconomic impact of Asia in Latin America and the financial development of emerging economies.

FRANÇOIS BAFOIL, sociologist, senior research fellow with the CNRS (Conseil National de la Recherche Scientifique) at CERI-Sciences Po; Special Adviser of the OECD for the Territorial Review Poland in 2007/8. He has written Europe centrale et orientale, Mondialisation, européanisation et changement social, Paris: Presses de Sciences Po, 2006 [Central and Eastern Europe: Globalization, Europeanization, and Social Change, Basingstoke: Palgrave, forthcoming 2008]. He edited La Pologne, Paris: Fayard, 2007.

GEOFF BARNARD is the senior economist working on the Russia and South Africa desk for the Economics Department of the OECD. Before joining the OECD in 2007, he worked for 15 years at the IMF, including three and a half years as a resident representative in Moscow. He was educated at Cambridge University, the London School of Economics, and McGill University.

ROBERT BOYER is senior research fellow with the CNRS and teaches at the EHESS in Paris. As economist at CEPREMAP in Paris, he conducts research on economic history, institutional and historic macroeconomics and comparative analyses of capitalism in the framework of regulation theory.

JEAN COUSSY is scientific correspondent of the Centre d'Etudes et de Recherches Internationaux (Sciences Po-CERI) in France and honorary lecturer at the EHESS (Paris). His research is in international political economy (international institutions, Africa, Asia).

OLIVIER DABÈNE is professor of political science at the Sciences Po, Paris, and director of Latin American Studies (undergraduate and graduate programmes).

DOMINIQUE DARBON is professor of political science at the Institut d'Études Politiques in Bordeaux and chairs the scientific council of the Africa department at the French Foreign Ministry. His research focuses on public administration in the southern hemisphere countries and state-building.

JEAN-LUC DOMENACH, senior research fellow with Sciences Po-CERI, is former director of CERI and former dean of research at the Sciences Po. He is the author of several books on Asia and China, including the recent Comprendre la Chine d'aujourd'hui and La Chine m'inquiète, published by Perrin.

GILLES FAVAREL-GARRIGUES, CNRS senior research fellow with CERI (Sciences Po-CNRS) has recently published La police des mœurs économiques de l'URSS à la Russie (CNRS Editions, 2007).

JEAN-JACQUES GABAS, professor of economics at Paris-XI University and the Sciences Po in Paris, director of the Analysis of Economic Transformations, Information Technologies and Societies research centre at the Interdisciplinary College at Paris-XI. He is honorary president of GEMDEV.

PIERRE-NOËL GIRAUD is economics professor at the Ecole des Mines in Paris. Member of the French Académie des Technologies.

FRANÇOIS GODEMENT, a historian, teaches at the Sciences Po and is the director of its ECFR Asia Centre. His research is on changes in China and East Asian international relations.

EMMANUEL GUÉRIN graduated from the Institute of Political Studies in Paris. He heads the IDDRI's development assistance programme and coordinates activities on emerging countries there.

JÉRÔME GUILLET is an investment banker in Paris and the editor of European Tribune, a website focused on Europe, energy and international politics.

PIERRE HASSNER, senior research fellow emeritus with Sciences Po-CERI, currently associate researcher, has taught at many institutions, most recently the University of Quebec in Montreal and the Institut des Hautes Etudes Internationales et du Développement in Geneva.

GUY HERMET, senior research fellow emeritus, former director of CERI and Professor at the Paris Institute of Political Studies as well as Brussels, Lausanne, Geneva and Montreal Universities.

JEAN-FRANÇOIS HUCHET is currently Director of the French Centre for Research on Contemporary China based in Hong Kong (Centre d'Etudes Français sur la Chine Contemporaine, CEFC), and director of the journal China Perspectives.

AHMET INSEL, professor of development economics, is head of the economics department at Galatasaray University in Istanbul.

CHRISTOPHE JAFFRELOT is director of CERI (Sciences Po) and senior research fellow with the CNRS. He has recently edited Milices armées d'Asie du Sud (Paris: Presses de Sciences Po, 2008).

FRANÇOISE LEMOINE is economist at the CEPII and associate researcher at the Centre on Modern and Contemporary China (EHESS, Paris). She has published L'Economie de la Chine (Paris: La Découverte, Collection Repères, 2006).

BRUNO LOSCH is Senior Economist at the World Bank (Sustainable Development Department) and researcher at CIRAD (the Centre de Coopération Internationale en Recherche Agronomique pour le Développement).

ROLAND MARCHAL, research fellow with the CNRS at CERI-Sciences Po, works on armed conflicts in Africa. In this context he has become interested in Dubai (Dubai, cité globale, CNRS Editions 2001) and in the history of relations between Asia and Africa (Afrique Asie: une autre mondialisation, Paris: Presses de Sciences Po, 2008).

ALEXANDRA NOVOSSELOFF holds a PhD in political science from the University of Paris II and specializes in the field of international organizations, peacekeeping and the relations between the United Nations and regional organizations.

IMÈNE RAHMOUNI-ROUSSEAU is Head of the Financial Stability and Markets Division at the Banque de France, the French central bank. Her division is responsible for analyzing vulnerabilities and risks in the international financial system. She was previously employed as economist at the European Central Bank. She has written numerous articles on monetary policy implementation and financial stability, notably in the area of securitization and credit derivatives.

DAVID RECONDO is research fellow at CERI-Sciences Po/CNRS. His research focuses on the varied fortunes of participatory democracy in Latin America from a comparative perspective. He has just published La Politique du guépard. Multiculturalisme et démocratie au Mexique, Paris: CERI-Karthala, "Recherches internationales", 2008.

ALAIN ROUQUIÉ, former French Ambassador to Brazil, is senior research fellow emeritus at CERI-Sciences Po and chairman of La Maison de l'Amérique Latine in Paris. He is the author of several books including The Military and the State in Latin America and Le Brésil au XX^e siècle.

JOËL RUET is a senior researcher with the French CNRS, at LATTS-Ecole Nationale des Ponts et Chaussées (a College of ParisTech), and associate researcher at CERNA, Ecole des Mines de Paris (ParisTech). He teaches at the Ecole des Mines, HEC-Paris, and the University of Barcelona.

JAVIER SANTISO is director and chief economist of the OECD Development Centre. He is also the chair of the OECD emerging markets network (EMNET). Previously he was chief economist for emerging markets at BBVA (Banco Bilbao Vizcaya Argentaria) and research fellow at CERI-Sciences Po. He is the author of Latin America's Political Economy of the Possible, Cambridge, MA: MIT Press, 2006.

JÉRÔME SGARD holds a PhD in Economics and is a senior research fellow at CERI-Sciences Po. He has worked extensively on economic crises and reforms in Eastern Europe and in emerging countries. His most recent research addresses the relations between the law, economic development and the government of public assets.

JEAN-MARC SIROËN, professor of international economics at Paris-Dauphine University, head of the masters programme. He has published on international economic relations and the link between trade and institutions.

ANNE DE TINGUY is a professor at INALCO (Institut National des Langues et Civilisations Orientales) and CERI-Sciences Po. She has written extensively on Russian and Ukrainian foreign policy. Most recently she has edited Moscou et le monde - L'ambition de la grandeur: une illusion? Paris: CERI-Autrement, 2008.

LAURENCE TUBIANA is Director of the Institute for Sustainable Development and International Relations (IDDRI) and the Sustainable Development Centre of the Institute of Political Studies in Paris, and member of the China Council for International Cooperation on Environment and Development (CCIED) and the Indian Council for Sustainable Development (ICSD).

CORNELIA WOLL is a research fellow at CERI-Sciences Po. She works in the field of international political economy and has recently published Firm Interests: How Governments Shape Business Lobbying on Global Trade (Ithaca, NY: Cornell University Press, 2008).

ATELIER DE CARTOGRAPHIE: Created in 1995, the Sciences Po Cartography Studio offers training for students and produces graphs and charts for the institution's instructors and researchers. It has also entered into partnership agreements with press organs, publishers, public administrations, companies and museums. Part of its map database is available on its website: <http://www.sciences-po.fr/cartographie>.

