

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Preface to the Paperback Edition	ix
Preface	xvii
Chapter 1 An Introduction to Terrorism	1
Chapter 2 The Special Problems Presented by International Terrorism	19
Chapter 3 Hostage and Other Negotiations	35
Chapter 4 International Cooperation in Preventing and Punishing Terrorism	47
Chapter 5 State-Sponsored Terrorism and Retaliation	65
Chapter 6 Prevention of Terrorism: An Overview	79
Chapter 7 Using the Criminal Justice System to Catch and Punish	105
Chapter 8 Domestic Intelligence-Gathering and Processing in the United States	129
Chapter 9 A Strategy of Common Sense	153
Notes	159
Index	167
About the Belfer Center for Science and International Affairs	180

Acknowledgments

This book is very much the fruit of five years of working together with two colleagues whose ideas and learning are in every chapter. Dr. Ariel Merari of the University of Tel Aviv has advised Israel and often the United States on every aspect of dealing with terrorism. Our mutual friend and colleague Dr. Daniel McGillis taught at Harvard Law School with us for five years, educated us on Northern Ireland, and contributed constantly to our joint exploration, leading to this volume. I am greatly indebted to both friends. That joint effort and this book would not have been possible without a very generous grant from the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation.

That I wrote and rewrote this material until it took its present form is the result of the insistence and help of my dearest friend, Ann Heymann.

Producing the manuscript depended on the skills, work, and constant good humor of my assistant, Jody Clineff.