

- SUBSCRIBE
- GIVE A GIFT
- LOG IN TO ACCESS THE DIGITAL ISSUE
- SIGN UP FOR AQ UPDATES

ENTER ZIP CODE

SEARCH OUR SITE

- Subscribe
- About
- Blog
- News
- Contact
- Archive
- Partners

ARCHIVE

From issue: Consulta Previa and Investment (Spring 2014)

■ AQ FEATURE

International Cooperation or Gridlock?

by

Ambassador Antonio de Aguiar Patriota

Brazilian UN Ambassador Maria Luiza Ribeiro Viotti abstains from Resolution 1973 on Libya on March 17, 2011. Photo: Xinhua/Gamma-Rapho/GETTY

The end of the unipolar world has created greater opportunities for collaboration—but only if established powers recognize the new mechanisms of global governance.

A shift of the global balance of power is under way. Emerging countries are increasingly playing significant roles on global issues, such as the global economy, trade, and investment, as well as in diplomacy and multilateral decision making.

In a few years, we will witness a historically rare phenomenon, when a new country will become the world's largest economy. China's GDP will soon become the largest in the world, overtaking the United States. The last time the world's number one economy changed was in the nineteenth century, when the U.S. economy surpassed the United Kingdom's.

Another remarkable trait of contemporary international relations is the unprecedented reduction of poverty on a global scale—with Brazil experiencing a steep decline in social inequality in the past years—making the eradication of extreme poverty an attainable goal worldwide.

It is possible that, by 2030, a majority of the world's population will be able to enjoy a middle class standard of living, an achievement unparalleled in human history.

However, this will not eliminate the significant gap in living standards that will continue to exist between developed and developing countries, such as China and India, even though they will probably become the world's first and second largest economies in terms of GDP by 2050.

Even as emerging countries are increasingly able to tilt the balance, the so-called “established powers” will still play a major role globally. These countries will continue to have diversified economies, formidable technological capacity and, in the case of the U.S., the ability to hold, for decades to come, far superior military power. Yet, there is no question that the relative power of the G8 countries has declined and, with it, their capacity to lead.

Like 6 people like this. Be the first of your friends.

Tweet 6

Comment on this post

To read more, subscribe and receive an instant digital copy of the latest issue.
Already a digital subscriber? Log in now.

Sort by Best

Share Favorite

Join the discussion...

JK · 5 months ago

It is true that the balance of power will shift the coming decades, and it is vital for the earth's livability that this shift is done in a sustainable way. Also, some of the directions mr. Patriota mentions are obviously part of the shift, for example the rise in economic power of both China and India. At the same time, I must comment on calling China a new country. Until the industrial revolution, both China and India were already the biggest economies, and for many centuries. Hopefully mr. Patriota agrees that history doesn't start in the late 18th century. Another point I'd like to mention here is the statement that Brazilian social inequality has steeply declined in recent years. True, the Gini coefficient has slightly come down since halfway the nineties of last century. But still, with a coefficient of about 0,55, the country is still among the top ten of most unequal countries in the world. So, before 'the majority enjoys a middle income life', there is still a lot to be done. Doing it sustainably is the challenge for the coming decades!

^ | v · Reply · Share

ALSO ON AMERICAS QUARTERLY

WHAT'S THIS?

Major Student Protest in Chile Ends in Violence

1 comment · a month ago

reviews of essay websites — Violence in terms education always sound so spooky and terrible ...

Colombia Submits Action Plan to EITI Secretariat

6 comments · 12 days ago

Dawn Branigan — A really interesting report. Look forward to hearing update on progress.

Oil Sparks in the Amazon: Local Conflicts, Indigenous ...

1 comment · 3 months ago

Pablo Lumerman — Good and needed. Patricia 's work is an excellent analsis tool for conflict ...

The Future of Québec Independence L'avenir de ...

1 comment · 2 months ago

Jean Bottari — I used to believe that Québec could one day be sovereign. But as years and different ...

Subscribe

Add Disqus to your site

Privacy

SUBSCRIBE TO AQ
1-Year Print, Digital, and
New App
Subscription for only $20.95
Save 30%!

Connect with AQ

Most Popular

MOST POPULAR ON AQ ONLINE

Most Viewed

Past: 1 day 1 week 1 month 1 year

Ecuadorian Minister Denounces Human Rights Watch Report (121 times)

Why There's No Nate Silver in Brazil (43 times)

The Republican Electoral Paradox (36 times)

Brazil's Long To-Do List (19 times)

At the DC Watering Hole: Senate Continues to Hold Tom Shannon's Nomination to be the

U.S. Ambassador to Brazil (14 times)

Read our new series of first-person articles.

WEB EXCLUSIVES

- AQ Slideshow: The People's Climate March in New York City

September 24, 2014

by Mari Hayman

View a series of photos from the People's Climate March on September 21, which brought more than 300,000 protesters to the streets of New York City.

- AQ Video: An Interview with Lilian Tintori

September 17, 2014

by Leani García

Lilian Tintori, the wife of imprisoned Venezuelan opposition leader Leopoldo López, discusses her husband's arrest and her new role as a human rights activist.

MORE WEB EXCLUSIVES »

AQ Online is sponsored by

AQ Course Packets: Now Available for Your Classroom!

Browse our catalogue.

AQ and Efecto Naím: NTN24 Partnership

June 1: This AQ-Efecto Naím segment looks at sustainable cities in the hemisphere.

NOW ON AS/COA ONLINE

Summary: Freedom of Expression in the Americas

by Steven McCutcheon - 4 hours ago

Opening Remarks: Carlos Lauría, Senior Americas Program Coordinator, Committee to Protect ...

Summary: Inspiring Women to Lead - AS/COA Women's Hemispheric Network Conference

by Allie Fleder - 21 hours ago

How can unorthodox career paths help women rise to leadership positions? Why are mentoring relationships important to grow ...

Oscar de la Renta: 1932-2014

Oct 21, 2014

Americas Society and Council of the Americas are saddened by news of the death of fashion designer Oscar de la Renta. A member ...

AQ MEDIA PARTNER

FINANCIAL TIMES

World

Codelco sticks with ambitious plans

23 hours ago

Chilean state-owned copper miner plans more than $23bn of investments between now and 2018

Companies

Silva claims Rousseff smear campaign

4 hours ago

Former Brazil poll frontrunner says she was branded homophobic