The Center for Democracy and the Third Sector at Georgetown University is pleased to announce its annual visiting faculty fellowship competition. Fellowships provide support for scholars, researchers, and specialists to pursue research on all aspects of the relationship between, and interactions among, democratic governance and those parts of society that are neither government nor business.

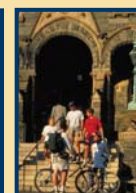

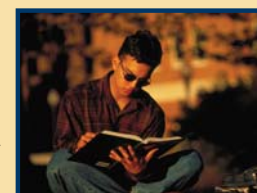

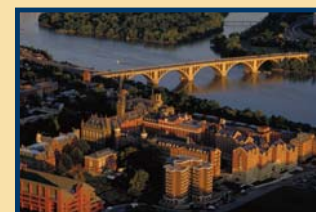

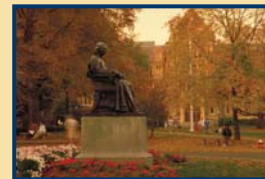

Program: Visiting faculty pursue their own research programs, conduct lectures, and contribute to the intellectual life of the Center, the Department of Government and the Georgetown Public Policy Institute. Fellows are expected to participate in CDATS activities and to give a public presentation on the research they carry out while in residence. In addition, fellows are required to teach one graduate-level seminar during the term of the fellowship. All visiting faculty receive a competitive stipend and applicable Georgetown University benefits.

Eligibility: The Center for Democracy and the Third Sector invites applications from postdoctoral scholars in the social sciences at any career stage. The duration of the fellowship is for one academic year and typically begins no later than September 1 and ends no earlier than May 31.

Application: Please visit us online at www.georgetown.edu/centers/cdats/visitors.htm and download your application. The application deadline for fellowships awarded in 2005-2006 is January 15, 2005.
