

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

CHRISTOPHER J. BICKERTON is stipendiary lecturer in International Relations at Pembroke College, University of Oxford, UK. He is currently completing his PhD on the role of legitimacy in EU foreign policy. He is also co-convenor of the Sovereignty and its Discontents working group, and co-editor of the recently published book Politics without sovereignty: a critique of contemporary international relations. He can be contacted at the email address: christopher.bickerton@sjc.ox.ac.uk.

PETR DRULÁK is the Director of the Institute of International Relations in Prague and associate professor of international relations at Charles University, Prague. He has published on theory of international relations, European integration and EU enlargement in a number of Czech and international publications (including the Journal of International Relations and Development, Journal of European Public Policy, and Geopolitics). He is the author of the first Czech textbook on theory of international relations (2003) and was a Jean Monnet Fellow at the European University Institute in Florence in 2003/2004.

ERIKA HARRIS is a Senior Lecturer in International Politics at the University of Liverpool (UK) where she also co-directs the “Europe in the World” Centre. She is the author of Nationalism and Democratisation Politics of Slovakia and Slovenia (Ashgate, 2002), Democracy in the New Europe with C. Lord (Palgrave, 2006) and Nationalism: Theories and Cases (Edinburgh University Press, forthcoming 2008).

MARCELA JINDROVÁ is enrolled in the last year of her Master’s studies where she will receive a degree in International Economic and Political Studies at the Faculty of Social Sciences, Charles University of Prague. In 2005, she obtained a Bachelor of Arts in International and European Economic Studies/International Relations at the University of New York in Prague.

LUCIE KÖNIGOVÁ was a research fellow at the Institute of International Relations, Prague. She was an Editor of the Mezinárodní vztahy journal and a lecturer at the Department of Political Science, Faculty of Arts, Charles University. She has published on international relations, European integration, EU institutional reform and enlargement in a number of Czech publications.

SEBASTIAN KRUSE was born in 1982. He is studying Political Science, Medieval and Modern History and German Language and Literature at the University of Cologne and will finish his studies in 2008. In 2006/2007, he studied for two semesters at the Charles University in Prague and was a research assistant at the IIR. Following this, he interned at the German Federal Foreign Office and the German Bundestag in the summer of 2007. He specialised in the European Integration Process and the EU as a political system and a global actor.

INA LEHMANN gained a Bachelor's degree in European Studies from Magdeburg University in Germany. Since October 2006, she is enrolled in a one-year Master's degree program for Peace and Security Studies at the Institute for Peace Research and Security Policy at the University of Hamburg. From July to September 2006, she was an intern at the Institute of International Relations. Her main areas of interest are resource conflicts, European foreign and development policy, democratization and human rights.

STANLEY MOODY studied applied science at King's College in the University of Durham. Later, he undertook a study of the social aspects of science and technology and was awarded a Master of Science degree. He was awarded a doctorate by the University of Aston for his work on the role of industrial design in technological innovation. He has practised as a design consultant. He has contributed articles to Czech, Slovak, and British design journals. He has addressed professional audiences in London and other European capital cities, including Prague and Bratislava.

NIKOLAOS TZIFAKIS is a Visiting Lecturer at the Department of Political Science at the University of Crete. His research interests are in contemporary Balkan development and the theory of International Security Studies. His recent publications include articles in the Journal of Southern Europe and the Balkans, Ethnopolitics, Journal of Political and Military Sociology and Southeast European Politics and chapter contributions to edited volumes. He is currently co-editing Human Security in the Balkans, to be published by Nova Publishers in New York.

HELEN VERSLUYS obtained her Master's Degree in EU Studies at the University of Louvain (Belgium) in 2003. During the period 2003–2004, she worked as an assistant for a Belgian Member of the European Parliament. Currently, she is a research assistant at the Centre for EU Studies of Ghent University (Belgium), where she is finishing her PhD on EU humanitarian aid policy.

NINA WESTERMANN was born in 1982. She currently studies Political sciences and Contemporary History at the University of Bonn in Germany. She will receive her Magister Artium Degree in December 2008.